Fort Lupton Development

Written by Chris Wilkins, Plant Manager

We're going through changes..

To borrow a line from Heraclitus, "The only constant is change." And out here at L. G. Everist Fort Lupton, change isn't just constant - it's kicking up sand.

In the coming months, we're shifting gears in a big way. The freshwater pond's getting a new home, and with it, a fresh pump to keep things flowing. We're rerouting silt and makeup water lines in preparations to take on the next chapter of our water supply story.

Meanwhile, the Fort Lupton West pit is getting a facelift - contractors are deep into reclamation work. Swingle South is wrapping up its run, and over at the Blue Ribbon pit, we're patching up the slurry wall while laying the groundwork to start mining just north of where we left off. It's a lot, but it's happening. Slowly, steadily, and with purpose.

Through all this movement, the crew at Fort Lupton hasn't missed a beat. They're rolling with the changes, keeping the quality sharp and the operation tight - just like L. G. Everist always has.

Change might be the only constant, but around here, it's also the fuel that keeps us pushing forward.
