Horse Creek Quarry Update

Written by Nick Lulic
Production and Sales Engineering Manager

Horse Creek Quarry is L. G. Everist's latest greenfield site, and the Mountain Division's first hard rock quarry. The quarry is located approximately 30 miles northwest of Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Last year, a custom crushing subcontractor produced various products for us, which we have been selling since late 2024. Earlier this year, it was decided to switch gears and bring the production operation in-house. In August, a jaw, cone, and screen plant were procured. Additional equipment had to be purchased, and some idle equipment was repurposed from our sites across Mountain and Midwest divisions.

Another step in the process was kicking recruitment efforts into high gear and hiring new employees to operate the equipment. We are happy to have Sam Haddan return to LGE in the capacity of Plant Manager, and we welcome our new employees to the L. G. Everist family! The team is pictured above.

The last of the equipment arrived towards the end of September. Production commenced on October 6th. This was no easy feat, given the timeline. Many thanks go to everyone who was involved in making this project a success.

The plan is to run the plant at Horse Creek to supply enough inventory for the winter. To increase the utilization of the plant, the operation will move to our Colorado sites through the winter months. The equipment will then return to Horse Creek in the spring.

LGE Tour Impacts

Recently, several LGE locations have opened their gates to visitors, hosting a variety of tours ranging from large organized groups to small impromptu visits. These tours play an impactful role in fostering transparency, strengthening community relationships, and showcasing the scale of our work to state officials, industry leaders, educators, students, and the general public.

By encouraging groups of all sizes, we are able to highlight the value of our operations, encourage informed dialogue, and build lasting connections

Thank You to our teams for their efforts, hospitality, and leadership.

Each year the South Dakota State University CIM students visit the Brookings location as a part of their comprehensive curriculum, seeing construction materials from the mine/pit to the pavement.

State Legislators, Union Pacific Reps, Utility Reps, Regulators, and Colorado business owners and leaders. Special thanks to the Ragsdale crew for keeping the site clean.

operations to folks, local to statewide. Attendees learned about LGE history, then proceeded with Jacob Hughes to view the quarry operations while engaging in thoughtful dialogue.

Students and educators from multiple departments at the South Dakota School of Mines and Technology visited the Dell Rapids East quarry as a part of a two-day visit to see Sioux Falls industries.

Last week, Myrl & Roy's had an exciting morning at Augustana University with Brandon Valley High School, as they took the next step with their large-scale wood prints! We are proud to be a part of the event again and get to see the creativity and designs from such talented students. Shoutout to Brian Hanneman for representing our team well!
